

Printable Claim Lab Worksheets

This page collects printable resources for turning flat-earth posts, memes, debate clips, and influencer claims into structured investigations. The goal is to slow the claim down until it becomes testable.

Interactive Worksheet Builder

Use the builder below to prepare a clean worksheet, then print or save it as a PDF from your browser.

<https://wiki.flatearthabsurdity.com/tools/claim-lab-worksheet/>

Best Uses

- Classroom discussion: one claim, one worksheet, one model comparison.
- Debate prep: require predictions before letting the conversation branch.
- Social media reply: answer with a measurement plan instead of a pile-on.
- Personal curiosity: keep a record of what each model predicted and what happened.

Worksheet Rule

If a claim cannot say what observation would count against it, it is not ready to be called proof. It is still a story, suspicion, or intuition.

Revision #1

Created 2026-04-27 23:05:08 UTC by Daniel

Updated 2026-04-27 23:05:08 UTC by Daniel